PRESIDENT IN NEW YORK CITY

To Unveil Statue Erected to Simon Bolivar.

HURRIED TRIP FOR WASHINGTON PARTY

The President's Address Deals Largely with Latin-American Affairs.

New York, April 19.—Upon this soil, which greeted Warren G. Harding, this afternoon, as an American citizen, he returned to take duty as president of the United States.

Pandemonium of cheers and music rose from the sea of humanity that surged around the President's car as the president and his party emerged and stepped into waiting machines and all along the way to the Waldorf-Astoria, there was the same continuous, tumultuous greeting.

It was as if the president had come to shake hands with New York and nothing else, though his true mission was to officiate at the unveiling of the statue of General Simon Bolivar, presented to this city by Venezuela. Mr. Harding thoroughly enjoyed the welcome extended him by the metropolis. The smile that came to his features with the first thunderous shout that went up from the multitude never left him and unceasingly he waved his silk hat and nodded cordially to the right and left and up to myriad bedecked windows, black with cheering spectators. All uptown New York was regaled in flags and bunting.

The large force of police reserves had difficulty stemming the human tide filling both sidewalks along the route from the station to the Waldorf, where a small reception by the president had been arranged preceding his trip to Central park.

American Position.

New York, April 19.—Standing in the shadow of the statue of Simon Bolivar, the great South American liberator, President Harding in an address, late today, reasserted his faith in the doctrine laid down by Monroe, a century ago and stated plainly that the United States stands ready at any time to fight if necessary, to preserve that doctrine and to protect the young democracies of the New World against oppression and tyranny.

Diplomats from all over the south and Latin countries and many from the countries of the Old World, were in the audience which heard the president's simple utterance of faith in the destiny of the two Americas and the warning which accompanied it that the United States is the "big brother of the smaller republics in fact as well as in theory."

The republics of the New World have a great mission to perform as well, the president declared. He cited a world torn by war and conflict and strife turning to the rich young continents of the western world in hope of aid.

"Therein lie for us both duty and opportunity," said the president. "duty to those whom we may help, opportunity, in helping others, to help ourselves."

President Harding's reassertion of his faith in the Monroe doctrine and his intention to preserve it, was vigorous.

"The doctrine proclaimed under Monroe," he said, "which ever since has been jealously guarded as a fundamental of our own republic, maintained that these continents should not again be regarded as fields for the colonial enterprises of Old World powers. There have been times when the meaning of Monroeism was misunderstood by some, perverted by others and made the subject of distorting propaganda by those who saw in it an obstacle to the realization of their own ambitions. Some have thought to make our adhesion to this doctrine a justification for prejudice against the United States. They have falsely charged that we were using it to hold the nations of the Old World at arm's length, in order that we might monopolize the privilege of exploitation for ourselves. Others have protested that the doctrine would never be enforced if to enforce it should involve us in actual hostilities.

"The history of the generations since that doctrine was proclaimed has proved that we never intended it selfishly, that we had no dream of exploitation. On the other side, the history of the last decade certainly must have convinced the world that we stand willing to fight, if necessary, to protect these continents, these young democracies, from oppression and tyranny.

"Surely we may contemplate with some satisfaction the vindication that our American system has won. Under it in a period no brief than history recalls no parallel of achievement, we have filled two continents with splendid and prosperous states. We have maintained ourselves independent of the older systems, also from their difficulties and struggles. We have erected in these continents a great power which, when civilization was at stake, dared to cast into the balance its full strength, and made sacrifices unparalleled in the history of the world. We have done this because we believed in the principles we professed, and we have maintained our independence because we have been willing to defend it.

Opportunity.

"Therein lie for us both duty and opportunity, duty to those whom we may help, opportunity in helping others, also to help ourselves. The great war has brought to us of the Americas a new conception of our place in the world.

"We need to know each other better, to understand peoples and institutions and methods more accurately; to develop the great producing and commercial possibilities of our own countries; to encourage the larger exchanges of our products and most sympathetic appreciation of our varied relations to one another and to the rest of the world. By accomplishing these things, we shall mightily strengthen ourselves to carry forward our tasks of today and of all the tomorrows."

In Metropolis.

Washington, April 19.—Accompanied by a party of official guests, the president and Mrs. Harding left Washington, this morning, for New York, where, late today, the president will unveil the statue of Simon Bolivar, the great South American liberator, in Central park and make his first speech as president away from Washington.

It will be a flying trip, for the presidential party. Only three hours will be spent in New York, the president and his guests returning to Washington immediately after the ceremonies are concluded in the park.

In the presidential party when it left Washington were Colonel George Harvey, the newly-named ambassador to Great Britain; Senators Frelinghuysen and Edge, of New Jersey; Brigadier General Charles E. Sawyer and others.

The party was joined in New York by other officials and many members of the Washington diplomatic corps.

MISS SPRING GRANTS EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

With Whom? Well, Readers'll Have To Guess.

"My stay in Marion will be very short, I hope, or indefinite. I like the town. I like the people. I like to stand on the curb on the corner and watch the 'passing show.' You know what I mean—I mean the different kinds of people that go to make up the 'follies of 1921,' of whom I may claim to be one. Yes, I like music—the soft music of the whispering wind, the caressing breeze, the music of all nature is the sweetest to me. I am fond of pretty things, and the flowers are the prettiest things I know, but one must always remember that music and the flowers go together. I love the throated melodoid bride, but say—young man, if you don't stop that running fire of silly questions, I shall insist that you leave me. I told you my stay is going to be indefinite—now indefinite is as indefinite to me as it is to you."

"Well, thank you, Miss Spring," gulped the Star's star trembling young weather reporter. I like your style of today and yesterday and was hoping you'd not make any marked changes for the worse for quite a spell. I'll tell my city editor you're sure some kiddo!"

PATTERN DEPARTMENT (First Floor)

Weather: Fair and Warmer. Tuesday, April 19th.

The Deltor

A wonderful invention that saves in every case more than its own price, in most cases more than the price of the pattern.

It enables you to make the smartest and most delightful type of clothes, even if you have never used a pattern before—and you don't have to know anything about dressmaking.

It cuts with the swiftness and economy of a professional cutter.

It puts together with the deftness and skill of a great dressmaker.

It finishes with the little tricks that add charm and beauty to the garment.

It was with the above views in mind that the Butterick Publishing Company added this great invention to their patterns which has become recognized as the greatest help ever introduced into the art of dressmaking.

Our Wonderful New Summer Quarterly is waiting for you at our Pattern Department.

MIDST RAPS AND SIGNS OF THE SECRET ORDERS

Kosciusko Odd Fellows Plan for Centennial Observance for April 26.

Lydia Chapter, No 83, Order of the Eastern Star, celebrated its twenty-fourth anniversary Monday with a ladies' social in the afternoon and a buffet picnic dinner in the evening for the families of the members.

This anniversary meeting is the only affair in the year in which the families are entertained and the company last evening numbered about 400.

After the dinner the regular business was taken up and work put on. James A. Knapp, in behalf of Mrs Frank L. Hunter, presented the late Mr. Hunter's sword to the chapter to be used at the point of Adah.

BOOTLEGGING BEING MADE MORE COSTLY

County Auditor Decker To Help Swell the Fund.

Bootlegging is being rapidly made unprofitable to the violator of the prohibition laws who happens to be apprehended. Not only is the violator liable to the penalties imposed under "dry" laws but he will have to pay the $1,000 Dow-Aiken license under the laws of Ohio.

County Auditor B. C. Decker has received notice from Joseph T. Tracy, auditor of state, to be prepared to assess this tax against violators whose names are certified by the state auditor. Under the mill act, the names of violators are sent by the prohibition commissioner to the state auditor.

Attention is called to the fact that many sections of the Dow-Aiken law still exist and that it is possible to violators. It is also pointed out that assess for the $1,000 liquor tax and the tax becomes a lien against property where the trafficking took place. A twenty per cent penalty for all delinquents.

THE HUB OF COMMERCE.

Daily Proverb—"He who can not speak well of his trade does not understand it."

Somebody should make an effort to get the league-of-nations advocates out of the trenches by next Christmas.

Then there's another phase of the thing. The saving-daylight plan doesn't give a square deal to the front porch swing.

It's hard to satisfy some people. Here we read about an Akron burglar who wants to be hanged instead of imprisoned for life.

Yesterday we neglected to commend the weatherman for his moderation Sunday. He might have added hail and sleet to his program.

The paragrapher of the Cincinnati Enquirer has the real plan. "Why not," he asks, "set aside 365 days a year for 'All-America' day?"

It's just possibe that Secretary Frank Hodges, of the British miners' federation, blundered in his diagnosis of the condition of John Bull.

Judging by the standing of the representatives of foreign powers being sent to this country, it's fairly safe to predict that it will be at least a moon or two before we become "isolated" from the rest of the world.

What's so remarkable about the fact that four prohibition agents at Buffalo have been convicted of grafting. It's hardly probable that those engaged in any occupation will be found to be 100 per cent. saints.

Prohibition may not be all it has been painted by its champions, but it's worth noting that a lot of men who never saved a dollar under wet conditions are now paying for homes and garnishee cases are becoming as scarce as hen's teeth.

MUCH COMMENDATION.

Although the present administration is not yet two months old, it would be possible to compile pages of editorial comment, from Democratic newspapers exclusively, commending individual members of President Harding's cabinet for achievements already recorded to their credit or for new and admirable policies which they have set in motion from which many great things are expected.

The statements of Secretaries Hughes and Hoover on the Russian trade situation, Mr Hughes' notes to Germany and the allies, Secretary Mellon's call for economy in governmental expenditures, the success of Secretaries Davis an Wallace in the settlement of the packing industry dispute—all these have come in for hearty praise. And now Postmaster General Hays is receiving liberal commendation for his vigorous efforts toward reforming the service of his department which he took over in a decidedly demoralized condition.

Congress, too, is faced by six issues of a domestic character, three of which, if it decides properly and promptly, will win for it the approval of the country—repeal of excess profits and other burdensome taxes and the substitution therefor of an equitable tax measure, the paring down of government expenses and the enactment of a new tariff law that will protect America from the encroachments of cheap labor in Germany and elsewhere.

The country is interested more in these matters than in the working out of the peace problem, which it is willing to entrust to President Harding, Secretary Hughes and the senate confident that nothing will be done to impair the sovereignty of the United States and everything possible will be accomplished toward guaranteeing the peace of the world.

At this moment a prosperous peaceful, progressive United States of America would do more to steady the wobbling nations of Europe than all the treaties and covenants ever enacted. For this reason and because they are disgusted with the interminable delays of the last administration the people of this country desire that congress devote itself at once and vigorously to the settlement of those difficulties that have kept the country from getting back to a normal basis. And congress is getting down to that task in a way that should promote optimism.

A VERY NARROW ESCAPE

MORE OPTIMIST NEEDED.

Most American citizens have confidence in the future of the United States; only a few are pessimistic to the point of believing or pretending to believe that we shall never get back to normal.

Eventually the clouds overhanging the business world will disappear. National resources will have little to do with the adoption of an optimistic attitude. Past experience teaches us that every depression has been followed by good business. This statement of fact may be better than a volume of arguments. We must never allow ourselves to lose hope in the future of this country. Our wealth has scarcely been scratched. We are a mighty people, and the next ten years should witness an industrial expansion, bringing to all prosperity transcending any former decade.

If more Americans were manifesting their faith in the substantial character of the resources of this country and its great future there would be less opportunity for the pessimism just now hanging so heavily over some quarters.

Governor W. P. G. Harding has statistical support for his statement that the very violence of the recent business reaction is evidence that a speedy recovery will follow. There was never a more violent panic in this country than the 1907 money panic and yet it passed away so rapidly that communities which escaped the first impact knew only dimly and by hearsay that anything had gone wrong.

In the present situation, however, nothing so evanescent as that can reasonably be expected. This country may expect the improvement which is now appearing to continue, but no sort of magic will suddenly replace the losses due to war. Patience, statesmanship and the healing processes of time will be required to bring the world all the way back to a period of settled prosperity and the United States must expect to get along with something less than a maximum of activity until the situation on the other side of the Atlantic improves.

But, taking the world as it is this country has much to be thankful for, and has a better outlook than any other of the great industrial nations.

After reading the utterances of Secretary Davis, it doesn't require much effort to figure out that he isn't as much as a thirty-second cousin to a Bolsherik.

"I may be sadly mistaken," remarked the fellow who lives next door on the way down town this morning, "but it's my guess that it will be some time before reputable physicians write beer prescriptions from force of habit."

It is manifest that the mayor of Cork leans to the view that his job can be handled satisfactorily on the absent-treatment plan.

We note that a near-by exchange commented on the fact, Saturday, that "eggs have dropped to forty cents a dozen." The paragrapher who keeps a kalker or two of emergency stuff on hand is always taking chances.

The professor who blames the poor showing made by Yale in athletics to the soil of Connecticut evidently overlooks the fact that the great majority of the cows of 'Old Eli' come from outside that state.

A few more bank failures, like the one out in Illinois who "discounted" his own note, and the high cost of living will be reduced to an extent that he'll be hard put to keep up with it. Which reminds us of what Grover Cleveland would say.

One simply cannot get through dealing with the school children of Alberta, Canada, where the teachers are out on a strike. Hasn't "Our Lady of the Snows" had enough?

"There are times," observed the pessimistic philosopher at lunch, "when I almost wonder if it isn't a pity that there may be people who were a bit unkind to the late Colonel Roosevelt than some who go less to be sorry for him today."

LIFE'S VAUDEVILLE.

(By James Hall Hagler)

MOUNTING TAXES.

In my humble opinion, the greatest novel ever written is Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables."

And in that worthy work of fiction is to be found many valuable truths.

One of the characters of the story is Bishop Myriel.

And this good bishop, in delivering a sermon to his people one day, said:

"My very dear brethern, my good friends, there are in France thirteen hundred and twenty thousand peasants' houses which have only three openings, eighteen hundred and seventeen thousand which have only two openings—the door and the window; and, lastly, three hundred and forty-six thousand houses which have only one opening—the door. All this comes from a thing called the door-and-window tax. Just place poor families, aged women and little children, in these houses—and then see the fevers and sickness! Alas! God gives men fresh air—and the law sells it to them."

What the good bishop was crying out against more than a hundred years ago—is what the civilized world is crying out against today: Heavy and, in many instances, unnecessary and unjust taxes.

America, like other civilized lands, is tax-ridden.

Taxes are piled too high upon the shoulders of our citizenship, they are too burdensome.

They work untold hardships.

They rob Peter to pay Paul.

We're trying to do too much; and our efforts—misconceived and misdirected many times—cost too much.

Our city governments are extravagant; our village and rural community governments are the same.

Our national government is not duly economical; and the same charge can righteously be made against our state governments.

Every activity of government is costing too much.

Our road-building is wasteful and unsatisfactory.

Our public buildings, including school buildings, cost too much money.

Our charities are entirely too generous; we deal too liberally with our wards.

We are trying to do too much for the people—too many things the people should do for themselves; and, in consequence, we are doing the people.

For all these mistakes mean higher taxes.

And higher taxes mean higher rents.

And higher rents inevitably mean poorer living conditions. And poorer living conditions mean increased poverty and ill health.

It's a vicious circle we are following.

To run the affairs of the state of Ohio, in 1912, cost the taxpayers thirteen and a half million dollars. By 1916, the cost had increased to nineteen and a half million dollars; by 1918, to almost twenty-three millions; and by 1920, to more than twenty-nine millions.

Tax exactions more than doubled in eight short years!

How long can the people stand it?

Now, as it's sure but death and taxes.

And, sometimes, death seems the lesser evil.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XI.—NEW YORK

THE STORY of New York should rightly begin with 1524, eighty-five years before Henry Hudson's voyage in his little boat the Half Moon, up the river which now bears his name. For it was at that early date an Italian navigator, Verrazano, exploring for France, sailed into New York bay. This first visit to New York made little stir and was soon forgotten, and it was Hudson's rediscovery which tempted the Dutch to send over colonists and obtain for the Dutch West India company a monopoly of the Dutch fur trade in America. The new colony which was started in 1623 called its territory New Netherlands, after its mother country, and their principal city New Amsterdam. It is interesting to reflect that Manhattan island, which is now New York city, was purchased from the Indians for $24 worth of beads and ribbons. Even in its earliest days the settlement on Manhattan Island was cosmopolitan. In 1643 it is reported that eighteen different languages were spoken there. In 1664 the English captured New Netherlands, and King Charles II presented the colony to his brother, the duke of York, who was later King James II, and its name was then changed to New York.

New York played a leading part in the formation of the United States. It was Alexander Hamilton who was New York's representative in framing the Constitution and it was New York city which was selected as the first capital of the new Union, where Washington was inaugurated the first president. Ever since the Empire state, as New York is sometimes called, has held the deciding voice in presidential elections. Though its size is only 47,654 square miles, not quite half way in the list of states according to area, its great population gives New York forty-five presidential electors, the largest number of any of the states.

CINEMA CHARITY SHOW FOR KING'S DAUGHTERS

Packed Houses Greet Mary Pickford in "Pollyanna."

WILL LAST TODAY AND TOMORROW AT GRAND

Much Good Done by King's Daughters Here—Quota for State Home at Bucyrus.

Four big crowds Monday indicate a great success for the City Union King's Daughters benefit show, "Pollyanna," at the Grand theater. It will continue over today and Wednesday, with two matinees and two evening attractions each day. Two full houses saw the matinee shows and at the first one in the evening the house was packed, people being turned away. Another large crowd saw the last show.

An added feature was "The Musical Christys" which was above the average.

The candy booth conducted by the King's Daughters in the theater lobby was also a big success and it will be there today and tomorrow.

Desire To Help.

It was not altogether Mary Pickford that attracted the big audiences, but also a desire on the part of Marion people to contribute toward the splendid charitable work being done by the local King's Daughters. The Marion King's Daughters during the past year have given between $1,000 and $1,200 toward charity, most of which has been spent for children. The proceeds from the benefit this week will go toward completing the union's quota for the State King's Daughters' home at Bucyrus and what remains after the quota is met will be used for local charity, for children especially. The union has been helping Miss Clara Bahre, the school nurse, purchase glasses, with throat operations and supplying milk for children in the schools who need such help, as well as doing other worthy work.

The attraction being presented by the union is one of unusual merit, pleasing both children and adults. It is a simple, homelike play, clean and wholesome, and there are but few who have not read Eleanor Porter's book from which the play is adapted. It is the story of a little orphan girl who goes to live with a maiden aunt who has lived a very selfish life and who at first does not take kindly to the child. Through the sunshine the child brings into the home and into the lives of others about her, the heart of the aunt becomes softened and after an accident befalls the child, she lets the child know of her love and makes her happy. The little girl not only makes many lives glad through her little kindnesses, but she reunited her aunt and her girlhood lover who had quarreled years before.

The Chautauqua attraction, "The Musical Christys," delighted the audiences.

VANDALS DESTROY GREENHOUSE PLANTS

Francis Estimates Loss Between $300 and $400.

A second offense in the destruction of plants in the greenhouse of J. J. Francis, of the Meeker pike, was made Sunday afternoon or evening when about 25,000 plants were sprinkled with a poison during the absence of the family.

The loss is estimated at between $300 and $400. Mr. Francis says he has no suspicion as to who committed the crime. The first attempt to destroy the plants was made Easter. Some of the plants have been sent to the state laboratory for examination to determine the nature of the poison.

BASEBALL

Tagging the Bases.

The weather man is leading in tagging the bases.

Five games were postponed Monday on account of rain.

A safety triple and a "bunty" single by Jacobson, gave the Browns a victory over the White Sox.

The Brown-White Sox affair was something of a pitching debate between Urban Shocker and Dick Kerr.

Jody Tyler was wild, but the Cubs pinched hits behind him off Kantlehner and Glazner and defeated the Pirates.

Luque pitched one of the best games so far this season, when he shut out the Cardinals with six scattered hits at Cincinnati.

Out of a Job.

Boston, April 19.—Gene Paulette, Philadelphia National infielder banned from organized baseball by Judge Landis, is out of a berth with the Massillon semi-professional national champions of last year. Massillon dropped Paulette, today, the management announcing that other semi-professional clubs had refused to play the Stark county team if it had Paulette on its roster. The semi-professionals are taking a stand for clean baseball in their ranks, as well as in the big leagues, says the Massillon management.

Miss Nan Cunningham, of Cleveland, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Stella Cunningham, of No. 355 south Main street.

HOME DeLuxe QUALITY

"DeLuxe"

THE BEDSPRING LUXURIOUS

DeLuxe is the most luxuriously comfortable bedspring made. It will give you a lifetime of satisfactory service and more soothing delightful healthful repose than you have ever known

Luxurious comfort in the bedspring DeLuxe is a result of special features in the construction, among which are the extra long highly tempered conical coils tied together diagonally at the top with elastic helical coils. These helical coils are securely attached to the large coils by Patented S-Hook Fasteners which insure the integrity of the entire fabric and distinguish DeLuxe from its many inferior imitations. Each coil is thus given freedom of action and the bedspring is made flexible, so that it follows the contour of the figure and supports the whole body buoyantly in a natural and therefore healthful position. It does not sag like a hammock or pitch to the side of heavier weight when occupied by two persons. Tranquilized and made drowsy with a sense of physical comfort, you drift off into sound and refreshing sleep.

DeLuxe is handsomely finished in Rose Gray Enamel and will fit metal or wood beds (and low-foot wood beds) without any change.

SCHOOL CONTRACTS FOR OVER $100,000 AWARDED

E. R. Barnthouse Company Gets North End Building.

WHILE BALDAUF WILL REMODEL CENTRAL SCHOOL

Steam Heat To Be Used in Both, Board Rejecting Hot-Air System.

Contracts aggregating $31,562.70 for the new four-room school building on north Main street and $44,617.40 for reclaiming the old Central building were awarded at the regular meeting of the board of education in the Harding High school building Monday night. Both general contracts went to local bidders and the plumbing and heating contracts for the Central building were awarded to Marion contractors.

While figures on the three contracts on the new building aggregate $31,562.70, it is estimated that the completed structure, including desks and equipment, will cost approximately $58,163. Estimates for the completion of the Central building, including architect's fees and equipment, total $17,294.10.

It's Big Job.

Awarding of the contracts for the two buildings entailed an enormous amount of work, including the selection of alternate proposals by the general contractors, investigation of the heating and plumbing bids and selection of the brick for the new building.

Representatives of the different firms bidding on plumbing and heating for the buildings were each given five minutes to explain the different bids and representatives of brick manufacturers were given a like period of time.

Nearly four hours were consumed in the work of disposing of the contracts and the other business which came before the board.

E. R. Barnthouse company was awarded the general contract for the Main Street building. The lump bid of this firm was 44,059.70, but selection of two alternates, carrying deductions of $2,119, brought this bid down to $41,940.70. One of these alternates consists of the selection of stone trimming instead of terra cotta at a reduction of $1,915. The other is the selection of colored mortar instead of white at a reduction of $204.

On the recommendation of Jacobs & Woolley, architects, the board selected glazed brick instead of concrete for interior work in the basement at the same price. The architects recommended this change in order to facilitate construction of the building.

Steam Heating.

Steam heating for the new building was selected on the recommendation of the architects on account of the fuel saving, lessening of the fire hazard and the quickness with which the building can be heated with it. Mr. Woolley stated that the steam heating bids were very reasonable. He said that normally figures for steam heating plants are twenty-five per cent. more than those for hot-air systems, while the bids submitted were approximately fifteen per cent. more. The low bid for steam was $768 higher than the low bid for hot air.

The bid of the Jones-Kinn Engineering company, Lima, for a steam heating, ventilating and automatic temperature control system at $5,575 was accepted. President R. J. Pennell cast the only negative vote on the motion, explaining that he favored hot air heat because of the difference in the cost.

The Charles Hoffman company, Mansfield, was awarded the plumbing contract for this building at its bid of $3,898. This bid was only one dollar lower than the bid of T. M. Cunningham, Marion. In accepting all of these bids the board authorized the president and clerk of the board to enter into contracts with the successful bidders, the contracts to be subject to the approval of the city solicitor.

William F. Bornhamer, of the Gold Hart-on Brick company, Columbus, Allan Ross Raff, of the Ironclay Brick company, Columbus, and O. G. Granger, of the Claycraft White & Brick company, Columbus, presented samples and prices of brick for the building. A shale brick manufactured by the Geddis-Harrison company was selected by the board. The prices for this brick are two dollars a thousand less than the estimate of the contractor and in this selection the board saved $126 on the general contract. It is estimated that the building will require 65,000 of these brick. A light salt glazed brick made by the Ironclay Brick company was selected for the playroom of the new building. This brick, at $54 a thousand, makes no change in the general contract.

Baldauf Award.

John Baldauf was awarded the general contract for remodeling the old Central building. His lump bid was $30,790, but alternate proposals selected by the board added $1,053 to this amount, bringing the total bid to $31,953. Alternates selected by the board included the deduction of $200 for using a number of the old doors for the interior of the building, an addition of $425 for weather strips for the windows, an addition of $594 for two steel stairways from the basement to the first floor, a reduction of $106 which the contractor offered to allow for the old fire escapes and a deduction of $324 for the elimination of partitions in two of the large class rooms.

T. M. Cunningham was awarded the contract for installing a steam heating, ventilating and automatic temperature control system in the building on his bid of $9,853.

Architect Must Approve.

The layout for this work is subject to approval by the architect. President Pennell cast a negative vote on the motion to accept this bid and explained that his objection was on account of the selection of steam in preference to hot air. The difference between the low bids for steam and hot air was $1,895.

Probst brothers were awarded the plumbing contract on their bid of $2,869.40. As in the case of the bids on the other building, the motions for accepting these bids authorize the president and clerk of the board to enter into contracts with the successful bidders, the contracts subject to the approval of the city solicitor.

Without Delay.

The successful contractors stated that work will begin on the two buildings without delay and both expressed the opinion that the structures will be practically completed by the opening of school in the fall.

The building-and-grounds committee was authorized to take steps necessary to care for drainage conditions in the basements of the Oakland Heights and Vernon Heights buildings. It was stated that there has been no little trouble at both buildings on account of the water backing into the basements from the sewers.

On the recommendation of Dr. H. R. McVay, superintendent of schools, the board authorized the purchase of 100 supplementary readers for the first and second grades. These books will cost approximately forty-eight cents each and are divided equally between the grades, 200 for the first and 200 for the second grades. "Easy Road to Reading" is the title of the books.

Preceding the session Dr. and Mrs. H. R. McVay entertained members of the board and their wives at a six-o'clock dinner at the High school building.
